

Not from the Pulpit: Fr Andrew Bullen SJ

Now that the Easter season is over, we are moving back to what is known liturgically as Ordinary Time; away from the whites and golds of high celebration, and urged onwards by Pentecostal reds into the green of many weeks ahead.

Green for hope, as common as grass, in Australia the colour of eucalyptus leaves. So we keep alert daily to the signs of hope in our lives, attuned to its whisper, a subtle habit and gentle discipline.

Pausing perhaps at the end of the day to replay what has happened during the day: how was I with the people who came my way? When was I lifted or calm in spirit? When disturbed? The good moments, the bad ones, the ambiguous ones? So what? When a touch of Pentecost, and when a touch of green?

AUSTRALIAN CATHOLIC BISHOPS CONFERENCE

Statement from Archbishop Mark Coleridge

Archbishop Philip Wilson has today been found guilty of failing to inform police about allegations of child sexual abuse. Archbishop Wilson maintained his innocence throughout this long judicial process. It is not yet clear if he will appeal the verdict. The Catholic Church, like other institutions, has learned a great deal about the tragedy of child sexual abuse and has implemented stronger programs, policies and procedures to protect children and vulnerable adults. The safety of children and vulnerable adults is paramount for the Church and its ministries.

Jesuit Mission Parish Appeal – CONTINUES THIS WEEKEND

Last weekend we held our annual Jesuit Mission appeal. Jesuit Mission is the international development and relief organisation of the Australian Jesuit Province. In Timor-Leste, up to 80% of school buildings were destroyed and many teachers fled during the conflict leading up to independence. Since then, the Jesuits have been accompanying the Timorese in rebuilding their future by providing high quality education institutes, such as Loyola College which is home to 690 students. Aprillia is a Year 11 student at Loyola College. “That is what I have learned mostly in the school, what leadership is, how to be like Ignatius, how to follow him, how to be men and women for others,” she says. In the future, Aprillia hopes to become a teacher. This is the last week to donate to support our Parish’s Jesuit Mission Appeal. You can donate using the envelopes provided, or online at jesuitmission.org.au
